Statement	T/F	Explanation
If I find something on Wikipedia, it's gospel. I can believe it and use for my class paper: check!
Websites that end in .gov are always legit.
Websites that use tildes (~) are where I put my trust.
I can trust websites that end in .edu.
Information from .com domains will always be false.
Information from .org domains will always be true.
Information from .net domains will always be false.
It says "blog" in the url, so it can't be trusted.
I can trust a website with typos.
The site's graphics are super high quality, so it is a trustworthy source.
I shouldn't be so cynical about websites' missing info and authors, cause that makes me a hater.

shmoop